

A vibrant display of fireworks exploding in a dark night sky. The fireworks are in various colors, including purple, yellow, and red, and are scattered across the upper two-thirds of the image. At the bottom, a city skyline is visible with lights reflecting on a body of water.

Guy Fawkes Night

5th November

1603

- In 1603 James I was the King of England.

- James I was a Protestant and wasn't very nice to the Catholics in England.
- He fined the Catholics who didn't attend Church of England services.

1604

- Robert Catesby was a Catholic.
- He and group of men wanted a new King.
- They decided to blow up Parliament on the day it was next opened by King James I.

The Houses of Parliament

Guy Fawkes

- Robert Catesby recruited Guy Fawkes because he was an expert in Gunpowder.

- They rented a room in a cellar below the Houses of Parliament and hid 36 barrels of gunpowder there.

The Gunpowder Plot

- On 5th November 1605 Guy Fawkes was guarding the gunpowder and ready to light the fuse.

- Somebody sent King James I an anonymous letter about the plot.

Guy Fawkes' arrest

- The King's guards discovered Guy Fawkes and arrested him.

- He was taken to the Tower of London. He was questioned about the other plotters before being killed.

The Tower of London

Bonfire Night

- In England today the gunpowder plot is remembered with bonfires, fireworks and sparklers.

Guy Fawkes

- An effigy of Guy Fawkes is put on the bonfire.

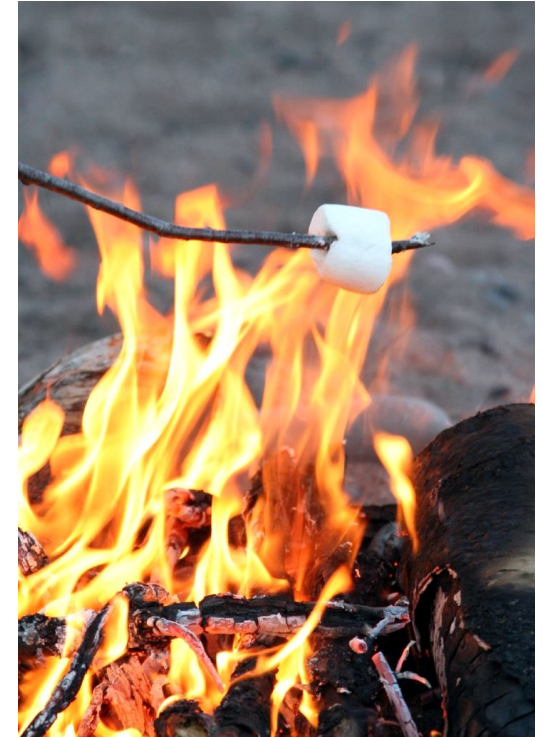

Bonfire Night food

↑
Jacket
potatoes

Toffee apples

↑
Toasted
marshmallows

*Remember, remember,
The fifth of November,
Gunpowder, treason and plot.
We see no reason why
Gunpowder treason
Should ever be forgot.*

